Prepared for the birth of a baby is an exciting time for expectant parents, but can also seem a little daunting. Your responsibility as a supervisor is to navigate this process in a way that is both positive for the employee and UNSW. This checklist summarises an employee’s parental leave entitlements, and things you should consider as their supervisor.

PARENTAL LEAVE

- Maternity / Adoption / Primary Carer Leave of 36 weeks on full pay for those with 5+ years of continuous service; or 26 weeks on full pay for those with less than 5 years continuous service. Under some circumstances, casual staff can be entitled to 14 weeks on full pay.
- Partner Leave is an entitlement of 2 weeks on full pay (apply online via myUNSW).

Please note this is a summary only. Refer to clause 33.5 of the UNSW Australia (Academic Staff) Enterprise Agreement 2015 or clause 39.5 of the UNSW Australia (Professional Staff) Enterprise Agreement 2015 for full details, including entitlements for Foster Parent and Grandparent Leave.

It is also recommended that you contact your faculty / division HR Team to confirm your employee’s parental leave entitlements.

SUPERVISOR CHECKLIST

Things to consider before the staff member starts leave:

- Ensure you are familiar with UNSW’s parental leave entitlements, both for Professional and Academic staff. It may also be useful to make you and the staff member aware of the University’s Balance@UNSW website. These pages provide valuable information regarding flexible work, early childhood education and care, breastfeeding at UNSW, caring responsibilities, Parental Leave (including Primary Carer Leave), as well as Study and Cultural Leave.

- After the staff member has notified you of their intention to take Parental Leave, advise them they need to submit a Parental Leave Application or Primary Carer Leave Application (with relevant paperwork) as soon as possible, and no later than four weeks prior to the date they intend to start leave.

- Meet with the staff member to discuss their leave plans and organise a performance review before they start leave.

- Discuss staying in touch options with the staff member while they are on leave. Make a note of when to make contact and provide information to the staff member as agreed. This could be:
  - A monthly phone call
  - Quarterly work updates
• Invitations to social events
• Invitations to team meetings
• Others?

Consider how the staff member’s workload will be managed while they are on leave.

Prepare transition for handover to the staff member(s) filling the role while the staff member is on leave.

Things to consider while the staff member is on leave:

Stay in contact as agreed with the staff member.

If the staff member has not already done so, make contact with them at least 10 weeks prior to their intended return date. If raised, discuss any changes to work arrangements they may require.

Work with HR to manage any change to the staff member’s working arrangements (e.g. reduced hours) to accommodate their return to work.

Things to consider when the staff member returns to work:

Prepare for the staff member’s return, including a re-induction process (similar to a new starter). Talk to the staff member about any changes that might have occurred in the team / unit while they were away.

Organise a handover, if needed, for the returning staff member.

If you have team members who have returned from Parental Leave you may like to see if the returning staff member would like to talk to them. Talking to a colleague who has returned from Parental Leave may help them settle back more quickly.

Make the staff member aware of resources available to help them adjust to balancing parenthood and work life.

UNSW Early Years owns and operates four early childhood education and care centres close to the Kensington campus: House at Pooh Corner, Kanga’s House, Tigger’s Honeypot and Owl’s House. Visit UNSW Early Years for more information. Additional information available via the below websites:

- MyChild.gov.au
- CareforKids

UNSW is an Australian Breastfeeding Association accredited workplace. The Kensington Campus has Parent Rooms in the Morven Brown and Ainsworth Buildings. UNSW Canberra also has a parent’s room. Locate UNSW’s parents’ rooms.

The Vice-Chancellor’s Childcare Support Fund was established to assist women researchers with childcare responsibilities to attend conferences and symposia relating to their field of work. Eligible applicants can apply for up to $2,000 in funding.

The Career Advancement Fund provides up to $10,000 in funding and is available to women
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>academics returning from maternity leave.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>UNSW has an Employee Assistance Program (EAP) available to all staff at the University. The EAP service is operated by an independent company, Davidson Trahaire Corpsych, and provides free, professional, confidential counselling services for employees and their families. The EAP can advise on: conflict and stress; family and relationship problems, anxiety and depression. The EAP operates a ManagerAssist advisory service to assist supervisors. Learn more about UNSW’s EAP.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Check-in with the staff member on a regular basis for the first 3 months after their return to work. This will allow them to discuss any issues and should help them to settle back in quickly.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>